As a mother, wife and leader, Nancy understands the many roles a woman plays and the feeling that there must be more in her and for her. She knows what it's like to spend blurry days scrubbing floors and doing laundry, and she also knows what it's like to use her voice as a singer and a former on-air spokesperson for QVC, reaching millions with her platform. In each season, Nancy has learned the power of intimacy with Christ and finding true aliveness from within — and unleashing the power and passion each of us is created for and called to.

After earning her master's in theology from Palmer Seminary of Eastern University, she launched her international speaking ministry, NancyHicksLive, and today, Nancy speaks and teaches all over the world, equipping and encouraging women to find what lights them up and rocks their world for Christ.

The author of Meant to Live, Nancy has been featured on Hallmark's Home & Family, The Jesus Calling Podcast, as well as in Publisher's Weekly, The Christian Post, Christian News Journal, Philadelphia Weekly and more.

With the perfect mix of grit and glamor, Nancy inspires women to take their place in God's Kingdom and raises them up to become who they're meant to be. She and her husband, Cam, have been married since 1990 and have two sons – Aaron, who is married to his darling wife, Rachel, and their beloved David, who passed on to heaven in May 2021 after a long, courageous battle with cancer.
